Chicago, May 25.—Ten thousand citizens

The nation whose most beloved political idols include an Emmet, a Fitzgerald, a Davis, an O'Brien, a Mitchell, and a Martin, all of religious minority, and whose present leader is a Protestant. Parnell has not in sympathy the elements classed in ecclesiastical prosperity.

We assure the great English premier that lished with power to restore Ireland's com-merce and Ireland's schools, Ireland's prosmerce and Ireland's schools, Ireland's pros-perity and Ireland's peace.

We denounce the atrocious calumnies of the Tory press, which charged the Irish-American citizens of Chicago with the re-sponsibility for the recent outrages of the anarchistic element. We respectfully sub-mit to the consideration of the American people the value of the assertions of that press. It is the same press which rejoiced when it thought the American union was destroyed. Its projudice and brutality: its when it thought the American union was destroyed. Its prejudice and brutality; its inability to report the current news of the world; its willingness to falsify and accuse Americans of Chicago in order to arouse prejudice against Gladstone home-rule bill, all fairly demonstrate its character. Its future assaults upon Americans should be treated for what they are worth by the American people and their press.

The meeting tonight of the friends of home rule in Ireland was one of the largest representative meetings ever held in this city. Fully 10,000 people compressed themselves into battary Darmory on the lake front while great crowds remained outside unable to get in. On the platform were the Governor of Illinois, president of the meeting and also a number of vice-presidents, judges, congressmen, denominations of men prominent in all walks of life. Alexander Sullivan followed. In the course of his speech he said:

This meeting is in some respects a novel one, for Irish-Americans, at least. We can find some good words for some Englishmen, we can hardly realize ourselves how strangely our voices must sound when they formulate an acknowledgement to the British premier for his efforts against the plan to govern Ireland by coercion, by buck shot, and endeavoring, as Wendell Phillips so graphically said, "to imprison an idea." Both Africa's and the Angio-Celtic conflicts are strangely committed to the battle field.

Hon. Wm. Smith, general manager of the Associated Press wrote:

"I shall be happy to serve as vice president of the mass meeting to be held at Battery D, Tuesday evening, May 25, under the anspices of the Irish National League, or anything else that will serve to promote the cause of home rule for Ireland."

His grace, Most Rev. E. P. Fahon, Catholic Irish bishop of Chicago, wrote:

"I regret it will not be possible for me to attend the meeting on Tuesday evening. I am greatly in sympathy with the object and sincere hope the proposed home-rule for Ireland will meet with speedy success."

W. K. Sullivan presented resolutions to express the sentiment of the meeting, with an appropriate and telling address. He regretted to see an effort being made to arouse animosity and antagonism which for centures had been so fruitful of disaster to the Irish people. He did not believe the religious minority, of which Parnell was a member, stood in the slightest danger of being oppressed by their fellow citizans who formed the religious majority. It should not be forgotten that education had taught the Irish people of all denominations to be friends of each other and leaders in the home rule movement embraced men of all religious denominations; men whose views are not restricted by their creed, but were broad enough to cover their country. He believed the granting of self-government to the Irish people would make Ireland mere contented and prosperous than it had been, and would strengthen rather than weaken British rule.
